The Natural and Universal Status of the Planets

Each of these planets is classified as natural benefics or natural malefics. The effects of these planets come in to play always on the life of a person.

Sun: Malefic

In Vedic astrology, the Sun is the principal of light, life and love, or will power and perception. A well-placed Sun gives intelligence, perception, strength of will and character. It affords endurance, stamina, vitality, positive spirit, direction, courage, conviction, confidence, leadership, independence and straightforwardness. Without it, whatever we may do or accomplish in life will not be ours and will not give us inner strength or peace. An ill placed Sun gives lack of intelligence, poor perception, weakness of will and character. It creates lack of endurance, low vitality, melancholy, fear, dependency or servitude and deviousness or dishonesty.

At the mundane level, Sun also represents father, any authority figure or the Government. Its strength or weakness will determine whether our relations with them would be cordial or not. It also indicates whether we shall lead people or be led by others.

Moon: Benefic/Neutral

The Moon represents our subconscious. Thus Moon can show positive resources from the past, which give us greater consciousness in life, or it can show negative influences from the past that bind us to regressive patterns of behavior.

The Moon is a Sattvic or spiritual planet. It gives faith, love, openness, surrender, devotion, peace and happiness. As a very sensitive and mutable planet, the Moon can be easily influenced and overcome by other planetary energies. Saturn can darken it, depress it or give it detachment. The Moon represents not only responsiveness but also inertia. Through our lunar sensitivity, we can become accustomed to a life of pain, sorrow, or ignorance, as well as to a life of joy and truth.

The Moon is our capacity to endure in any environment, which can also become a negative factor whereby we may accept subordination, subservience or degradation.

Mars: Malefic

Mars is the planet of power, strength, courage and aggression. It measures our ability to project force in life. On the positive side, a strong Mars is necessary to give us the energy, will, confidence and independence. Mars can make the person, ambitious, energetic, brave and resolute. It increases vitality and imparts great strength --the qualities it shares with Sun--to carry out our endeavors. Without it we have no real interests, passions and motivations, no determination, no real intensity or ability to carry out anything to the end and really accomplish it.

On the negative side, this same aggression brings about competition, argument and conflict and when unchecked by other factors, it causes domination, control, violence and injury. Mars is the general significator for injury, accident, conflict and marital disharmony.

Mercury: Benefic

Mercury is the great messenger of the Gods. A natural benefic and it imparts very good qualities to the person. Mercury is a subtle planet and the results of its traits are difficult to pin point. It is the planet of communication and change.

It is the planet, which represents speech, communication and commerce at all levels. Mercury governs writing, education, calculation and thought. Mercury is the fastest moving of the planets and so is indicative of quick comprehension, facility, ease and plasticity in expression. Mercury provides for the quick correlation of ideas, the fast interchange of information or of things of value. A person endowed with strong Mercurial qualities can be unfathomable and unpredictable. There is great optimism and a bright outlook that brightens the environment wherever the person goes. Prosperity and happiness are some of the benefits of healthy and happy Mercury. It is the planet that connects us to the powers of the mind.

Jupiter: Great benefic

In the higher sense Jupiter is the divine grace, which can fulfil all of our needs without our seeking. The strength to hope is governed by Jupiter. In astrology Jupiter is regarded as the greatest benefic, the planet that helps the creation to survive. Jupiter is the significator of optimism which is in other words 'our strength to hope'. It is also the planet that governs marriage, children and wealth among other things. Jupiter is the Divine grace which can fulfill all human needs, even without our seeking.

It is said that Indra, the king of heaven, appointed him as the teacher who showed the correct path to the gods. Jupiter is symbolic of the concept of Guru or teacher.

Venus: Benefic

Another Guru or teacher is Venus or Shukra, but a teacher of the demons. On the mundane level, the spirit of Venus tames unbridled passions and these passions can be of many dimensions. Passion for power, passion for wealth, passion for physical union, passion for control of the masses are a few that are pointed out. A perfect Venus is a rare commodity in a horoscope and Venus energy often is the main essence that helps a mortal to live a content life.

Venus represents the feminine spirit, she is well known as the Goddess of Love and Beauty. Our Venus shows our affection and sense of harmony in life. On the lower and outward level Venus shows our pursuit of pleasure, comfort and luxury. She represents the pleasure of the senses and the comforts of the body. She is beauty, style and elegance-the refinement of wealth and not just crude accumulation. Her concern is not just with quantity, but also with quality and good taste.

Saturn: Great malefic

Saturn is the most mysterious of all planets. On one hand while it represents all that is evil, base and cruel, on the other it is also a great benefic. Saturn as the lord of restraint does not allow slack in any field for whatever cause. To work with Saturn's energy one has to be strict with oneself and maintain routine of duties without fail. Positive influences increase with positive actions and negative actions invite misery and sorrow. Any short cut should be strictly avoided with respect to Saturn

Saturn can represent death and the destroyer of all the things that we hold dear to us. Saturn will take away the dearest one from our life without notice and can turn the king into a pauper in a moment. Saturn wants us to understand that all these material trappings of earthly power are meaningless. The only true thing in life is to be free and liberated from all desires and become a true Yogi (ascetic). Saturn may delay but it does not deny if there is effort.

The Nodes: Rahu and Ketu

The two together can be most troublesome in their lowly journey, but if you are a evolved soul, their mischief are much less in dimension as their energies are more on the higher level than in the mode to bring you down to the demonic level. The tussle between unpredictability and probability is their specialty. It is difficult to provide a perfect modus operandi that will keep these two under control.

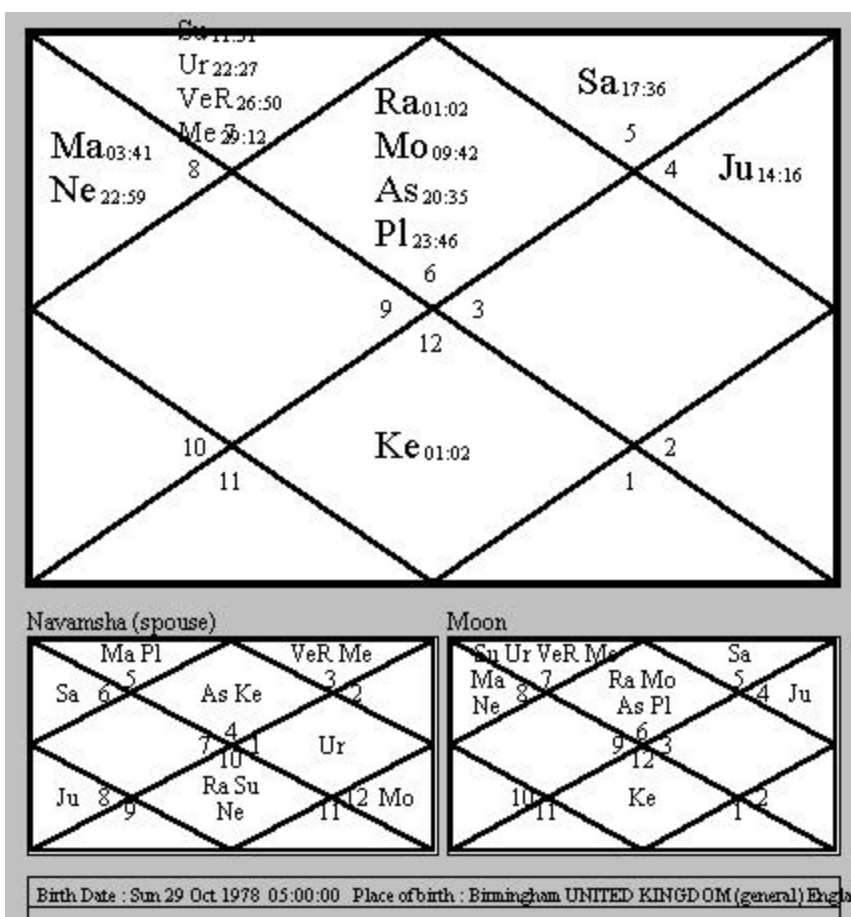

Rahu: Malefic

Rahu is supposed to be a cantankerous child of Maya (the illusory power of nature). This directly speaks of the dualities attached to Rahu. It relates or represents a force displaying the possibilities in the realm of existence. Rahu essentially can be associated with the dualities that finally attribute fusion. The perfect fusion that finally leads to contentment; hence the typical Rahu emotion is "nothing is good enough". It takes the higher energy of Rahu to generate the perpetual seeking in the mortal that leads to the right direction. Generally Rahu is discontent incarnate and it can instigate the lowliest of tendencies in a mortal to achieve the desired object. Its nature in the lower aspects can empower all the bad points of the dark side of human psyche.

Ketu: Malefic

Ketu is akin to Rahu in most of its attributes but it has a peculiar retarding syndrome attached to it. Ketu signifies the extremes. The higher energy of Ketu can generate the perfect balance of humility and acceptance but generally Ketu personality either loves or hates with a passion that may over flow into many births. Ketu is unreasonable and childlike. Its desires will not cut any corner. In some ways it can be said that Ketu is fanaticism incarnate, unreasonable and irrational. At some points a Rahu person will listen to logic and see the reality for self gratification but a Ketu person will never relate to any pointers to probability. It may force destruction in the most childlike manner. It is no wonder that Ketu is representative of the extremes, creation and destruction.
